

CORE4 GYMNASIUM

a private gym owned by
NBA All-Star Paul Millsap

Chamblee, GA
33,000 SF

To transform a non-descript warehouse into an inspirational private gym complete with three basketball courts, a weight room, wind sprint turf, upscale locker rooms and a private office.

Challenges:

- Push the typical gym design envelope and incorporate personal and company branding in a non-ostentatious solution.
- Convert an existing 1973 warehouse into a space that meets today's building codes and lifestyle standards.

Creative Solutions:

- Created a basketball and court-inspired space utilizing the black lines, or channels, of the basketball in a 3D application to create a curvilinear, wood-planked feature that leads visitors from the front door through the lobby and onto the courts.
- Installed a wall of stained wood slats with Paul's "4" projecting from the surface embracing the Core4 name while creating a material connection with the basketball courts.
- Brought life to a dated exterior with a fresh color scheme and a custom, metal lattice sunshade inspired by a basketball net.
- Mitigated contaminated soils and asbestos during the construction.
- Installed an enhanced building envelope and upgraded mechanical and electrical systems to align with building codes and improve energy efficiency.

Services Provided:

- programming
- space planning
- visioning sessions and renderings
- construction documents
- consultant coordination (MEP, structural engineers, civil engineers)
- construction administration
